You Say Aloha (Goodbye) and I Say Aloha (Hello)

You may not require a lot of instruction to learn another language. You might want to learn a few phrases so you can speak to your spouse's family, for example. You might just enjoy knowing the basics of a few other languages. You might be driving down to Mexico for the weekend and want to know enough Spanish to have conversations with the locals at stores, restaurants and on the bus. Duolingo is a good app to learn the basics of a language. It's fun, too. It teaches you with games, fun lessons and a bit of repetition. After all, that's how you learn.

The Privacy Policy Chatbot - PriBot

PriBot is basically a chatbot that can answer all your questions about a website or online service's privacy policy. Type in any question and PriBot will find the appropriate passage of a company's privacy policy that should answer your query. PriBot will even give its own thoughts and pieces of advice about the matter. Pretty slick!

Free Sheet Music

Are you a piano player? What about an aspiring violinist? Maybe you are just a music lover. Comforting and steady, back from the day when music composition didn't depend on computer generation. The folks over at IMSLP have put together a massive database of sheet music, complete with thousands of classical scores. Much of the sheet music for piano, violin, trumpet and every other instrument you can imagine is available completely for free, but there are also many more pieces that are available for a nominal fee.

Where in the World Are You?

This fun clever site drops you somewhere in the world, can you figure out where? The game is called GeoGuesser. How it works is, you select a map from the site and click Play. You will land at a random location from the map and you must guess where in the world you are.

The game uses Google Maps' images to show you the surrounding area. You can navigate around these images to see people, roads and anything else that can be used to give you clues to your whereabouts.
